PARTS OF HUMAN BODY ARE FOUND IN A SUIT CASE

Physicians Quickly Solve "Murder Mystery" Which Startled Police Department.

TURNED OVER TO CORONER
Grosses Find Sent to the Capital to Be Used by Anatomy Students.

Discovery of several parts of a human body in a suitcase in the baggage car of a train entering Union Station yesterday created a sensation at the terminal and caused excitement in the police department.

It was not until members of the medical profession took a hand in the case and said that the parts of the body are anatomical specimens that the police were convinced they did not have a gruesome murder mystery to solve.

As the train approached Washington the crew of the baggage car began piling up the baggage to be taken off at the National Capital and in so handling an ordinary suitcase one of the baggage-men wrenched his hands with fluid.

When the top was thrown back, the baggage men found that the contents were inclosed in oilcloth. The ends of the cloth were pulled up, and the baggage men gazed. The ghastly sight of dismembered portions of a human body greeted them.

A minute after the train had stopped at Union Station, Baggage-master Pittall viewed the contents of the suitcase, and telephoned to the coroner. Word was telephoned to Police Headquarters, and Inspector Robert Hordman detailed Detectives Weedon, Messer, and Fortenay, of the "murder squad," to investigate.

Instructions were given the police not to molest or remove the suit case until the contents were viewed by the coroner. Deputy Coroner Charles S. White telephoned that he was hurrying to the scene. He arrived with Dr. E. W. Titus. No sooner had the physicians gazed at the contents of the case than the "mystery" was solved.

"Why those are anatomical specimens undoubtedly being shipped here by some physician," said Dr. Titus to the group of men about the suit case. "These specimens are old, and look to me as though they have been used in instructions in surgery." Deputy Coroner White ordered the suit case removed to the morgue.

In the meantime, the detectives had been busy. They learned that the suitcase had been sent from Asen Arbor, Mich., by Dr. Matthew Kollig. The case was also consigned to Dr. Kollig in Washington, but to no address here. Two large trunks were also shipped with the suitcase. At this morning the contents of the suitcase were carefully examined by Deputy Coroner White.

He found a portion of a skull, the torso, intestines, a heart, liver, kidneys, nerves, muscles, and other specimens. These specimens had been preserved in a solution of formaldehyde, and it was this fluid leaking from the suitcase which led to the discovery of its contents.

Dr. Kollig's purpose in shipping the ghastly consignment to Washington was not understood until it was learned that he has resigned his position as assistant professor of anatomy at the University of Michigan to accept the position as professor of anatomy at George Washington University. Dr. Kollig will assume his new duties here within a few weeks.

If he had arrived in this city last night, he would have been met by no avail. Dr. Kollig, it is believed, will use the specimens in his teachings this winter at the school.

The College and the Man.
From the St. Louis Republic.

"Crimson, blue, and orange and black! There's the color scheme of the campaign. It invites analysis.

It may be asked how the crimson gets in. By sheer violence. The colored, to be sure, has no party and no platform. Any other candidate for the Presidency handicapped thus might be uneasy and dubious. No so the colored. He has concluded to run. Other matters, germane or irrelevant, must adjust themselves to that decision.

So here is the colored, fair Harvard's polished son, a crimson sash tied neatly about his waist, a bit of red and black streaming coyly from a vindictive hat.

In his reserve and hauteur we find the highest expression of Cambridge culture. This is the dominant tradition of Harvard's emblems and distributed.

Behold the stern, unyielding Taft, bearing aloft the banner of Yale's blue. Lucky for the President he chose the college he did. In another institution he might have failed to develop those hard, unyielding qualities which distinguished him when he defied Joe Cannon and vetoed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. The indubitable backbone, the talent of tenacity, the genius for doing things now in short, the practical man as against the votary of culture, the distinction that differentiates Yale from Harvard, is found blooming riotously in Taft.

Come Dr. Wilson, the accolade of Princeton's orange and black upon him. What trait of individuality does Princeton bestow? We might look for a temperamental midway between the traditional extremes of Harvard and Yale; a fair, smooth, level ground; forsooth, a conservative. Do we find it? Not to a perceptible extent.

The simple fact is that Roosevelt, Taft, and Wilson refute emphatically the traditions of their colleges. Roosevelt is a spectacular prodigy to whom no vestige of the Harvard heritage of "inference" clings. Taft is the blue-eyed exception to Yale's reputed sturdiness. Wilson is a non-conformist to the Princeton orthodoxy.

The college tradition is a veneer that lies only under favorable environment. The man's the man "for a" that.

London's Musical Training.
From London.

Jack London, when on a recent visit to New York, was introduced to a musician in one of the popular Broadway cafes.

"I am a musician in a small way," said London. "My musical talent was once the means of saving my life."

The musician was at once very much interested.

"How was that?" he asked.

"There was a great flood in the town of my boyhood," explained London.

"When the water struck our house my father got on a bed and floated with the stream until he was rescued."

"And you?" queried the musician.

"And," smiled London, "I accompanied him on the piano."

SOCIALIST MAKES REPLY TO RYAN

Louis Kopelin Defies Vice President of Truth Society to Give Official Declaration.

DODGES QUESTION AT ISSUE

In reply to the assertion of Francis de Sales Ryan, vice president of the Aloysius Truth Society, made in yesterday's Herald, to the effect that European Socialist leaders have declared themselves against religion and the family, Louis Kopelin, editor of The National Socialist, and chairman of the organization committee of the Socialist party of the District, issued yesterday the following statement:

"It is highly amusing to note that an American political party with nearly a million votes and over a thousand elected officials is assailed by Mr. Ryan with a number of ominous passages from speeches alleged to have been made by Socialists of European countries. Mr. Ryan has not even taken the trouble to quote Socialists of America, who may have views similar to those of Robert C. Ingersoll, the great Republican orator and infidel, if that will prove anything.

"What these European Socialists have said regarding religion and other matters has nothing to do with the question at issue. I insist that the Socialist party of this country, and as a matter of fact, the parties of all European countries mentioned, stand for the home and absolutely for religious freedom.

Ryan Is Challenged.
"Let Mr. Ryan quote a single official declaration, not the private views of some individuals, disproving what I have just stated. He cannot. He will find, if he will take the trouble to read the platforms and resolutions of the Socialist parties in the forty countries where they are in existence, that we do not regard religion a private matter. Also, he will find that the main purpose of our propaganda is to restore the home of the workingman, which has been destroyed by the profit-grinding capitalist system under which we live, and which has the support of Mr. Ryan.

"I note that Bebel was quoted by Mr. Ryan. I will quote Wilhelm Liebknecht, the founder and great leader of the German Socialist movement. In his book, 'Socialism,' he said:

"Socialism as such has absolutely nothing to do with religion. Every man has the right to think and believe what he will, and no one has the right to molest another in his thoughts or beliefs, or to allow any one's opinions to be a disadvantage to him in any way."

"The Socialist party of Germany, at every national convention, has reaffirmed its declaration of 1900, which was that the Socialist movement concerns itself with the economic needs of the working class and that it has nothing to do, one way or the other, with religion.

"Some years ago, when the German Emperor, a Protestant, ordered the expulsion of the Socialists from Germany, the Socialist members of the German Parliament supported the Center party—the Catholic party—in its efforts to remove the Socialists. The Socialists declared that the State should not prevent any religious body from having such religious teachers as it might desire.

Catholics Are Members.
"The Socialist party in this country is composed of persons of different religious beliefs and some who are not attached to any creed. Many Catholic workingmen are enthusiastic Socialists, because they suffer from the same economic conditions as surround the workers of other beliefs. Even Catholic priests support the Socialist party, and Father McGarry was one of our most prominent lecturers.

"As to the assertion that Socialists are opposed to the family, I again call on Mr. Ryan to produce official proof of that charge, not garbled passages from the writings of individuals. It is rather surprising to have this charge brought against workingmen who desire to improve their economic conditions, when the daily press to-day is filled with stories of vice, divorce, and scandal, especially in classes that are as much opposed to Socialism as is Mr. Ryan.

"The statistics on divorce, prostitution, and woman and child labor show what the family is to-day under capitalism. It is to conserve the family and to promote the welfare of the people in the home, city, State and nation that the Socialists the world over are bending their energies to supplant the present order with the co-operative Commonwealth.

DO ANTS TALK?
Actions Indicate That Little Insects Enjoy a Sign Language.

From an Exchange.

In some quarters it is held that the existence of language among insects is already proved, and that what is now of interest to ascertain, if it can be ascertained, is the extent of their language, and the ideas and inferences to which it gives rise. It is still a question, however, as to how communication is effected.

It is not, as is often supposed, by rubbing the antennae together. The movements of the insects make this seem reasonable, yet a German naturalist has insisted that ants are provided with a sounding apparatus, and that the wisp, by means of which faint sounds suited to the ears of ants are produced. In the opinions of other naturalists the remains to be proved.

How is it that these small creatures can venture, far from the nest, distances that are relatively enormous, and never hesitate about the road to take when they wish to return to their home? The New York Press, learned men who have studied the matter attribute the power to the formic acid given out by the insect as it travels, so that it finds its way in exactly the same manner that a fox or a dog does.

One investigator followed an ant for a long time. She was far from the ant-hill and seemed to have no intention of returning. In the middle of the path she came upon the dead body of a small animal. She first walked all around it, then climbed upon its back, crawled over it, and after this thorough examination, instead of going on, immediately returned to the nest. When half-way home she met one of her companions. In an instant they had touched or rubbed antennae with great animation, and she was soon pursuing her course again. The same performance took place when she met a second and a third companion, and as soon as she had left them they quickly turned toward the spot where the small lay. The first ant soon entered the nest, and the naturalist lost sight of her; but doubtless she continued her work of informing and exciting the rest, for a long line of ants immediately came out and set forth for the prey. Ten minutes later the small was entirely covered with the yellow swarm, and by evening not a trace of it remained.

ACTRESS TO TELL ABOUT SHOOTING

Whitman Issues Subpoena for Laura Davis, Chicago Singer, in Rosenthal Case.

SAW MEN IN AUTOMOBILES

Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 8.—District Attorney Whitman, of New York, believes he has discovered a most important witness in the Rosenthal murder case in this city, one who saw the fatal shots fired and saw the murderers flee in two automobiles afterward. It is possible that the witness may be able to identify several of the men who were in the automobiles. This witness is Miss Laura Davis, a young Chicago singer, who has been appearing at a theater near this city since the day following the Rosenthal murder. Detective Stewart, who went to Hot Springs, Ark., after Sam Schepps, late last night served a subpoena upon Miss Davis, which demands her attendance before the grand jury on Thursday, September 12. She tells the following story about the incident she witnessed.

"I had not been feeling well for some days, and when I went to the Cadillac Hotel on the night of the Rosenthal murder I was very nervous. It was about 11:15 o'clock when I went into the hotel. I was alone, and during the course of the hotel when I entered, and I thought him rather queer. On going to my room, on the fourth floor, I tried to read for a while. Just as I was about to retire I heard a noise like a shot. I thought it was from an automobile, but went to the window. Then there came another shot from in front of the Metropole.

"I saw two automobiles in the street in front of the hotel, one headed toward Broadway, and one toward Sixth Avenue. I think there were three or four men in the one headed toward Broadway, and immediately after the shots were fired I saw a man run to that car, climb in, and in a second they were going toward Broadway at a high speed. At the same time the other car, with several men in it, went toward Sixth Avenue. Then people came running from all directions.

"I do not know whether I could identify the man who ran and climbed into the automobile after the shooting, but I think I could identify the man who was sitting in front of the Cadillac. I did not tell anybody about what I had seen, as I did not think it of any importance."

Miss Davis' home is in Chicago. She has been in bad health and took a summer engagement at Midway Park, hoping that the change of air would benefit her. She will go to New York Wednesday.

NOT SO BLACK AS PAINTED.

Crow a Hard-working Destroyer of Farm Pests.

From the Indiana Farmer.

Notwithstanding the fact that the farmers and State Legislatures are all against me, I believe the crow to be a valuable friend of the farmer. This crow-bug business is a big piece of foolery which the farmer is going to wake up to some of these days.

Have you ever been bothered with those pink bugs along the tile drains in the low spots? These are almost invariably started by the crayfish or "crow bugs," which have drilled down to the tile in their efforts to strike a vein of water. "That rascal," the crow, destroys a great number of these pests every spring.

Have you noticed those "brown-shelled bugs" which begin to appear in the latter part of May? They are the June bugs, the pest which if allowed to multiply, would cut every leaf from the fruit and forest trees. These beetles have many enemies, but none so voracious as our crows.

There is much more damage done to the corn by the jaybird than the crow, yet the crow gets the blame for every ill missing or stalk pulled up since this bounty was placed on his head. To you think the crow comes to pluck every time you see him on the place? Just keep your eyes hunted up in the wood patches and around the outbuildings and the crow will not carry them off. Crows cease to bother much after a month or so in spring, and during the rest of the year his wild food supply is sufficient and he is then a friend to agriculture.

Last spring I observed two crows in a corner by the thicket feeding upon a large black snake they had dispatched. The snake which had been devoured more quail eggs and young birds in a single season than a dozen crows. As the snake measured some five feet six, he was getting dangerous, and those crows had rendered a good service to the neighborhood by getting him out of the way.

The crow heartily hates the larger species of hawks and will not rest as long as one is in his vicinity. Certainly the crow has a worthy work to perform, as worthy as the quail, lark, and other birds.

I GUARANTEE TO CURE ECZEMA TO STAY CURED

It is also called SALT RHEUM, SCALD HEAD, TETTER, ITCH, WEEPING SKIN, MILK CRUST, PRURITUS—these are different names, but all mean one thing—ECZEMA.

I prove every word that I have said—I give to every sufferer.

A FREE TRIAL

Just to show you that you need my treatment. It's yours for the asking. If you have been to other doctors, if you have taken patent medicines, and used ointments and salves and you are disgusted, write to me—I will send you ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, A TRIAL TREATMENT. There are no strings to this statement. There is not one cent to pay—not a penny accepted. I know what my trial treatment will do. I know that it will convince you more than anything else on earth that you need my treatment.

Don't Miss this Chance for a Cure
If you are suffering from ECZEMA you can only be cured by removing the cause. What is the cause? ACID IN THE BLOOD. How do you remove it? By cleaning the blood of the ACID.

My treatment is nothing—relieves the dreadful itching at once and cures the disease quickly. You don't have to take treatment for months and months. ONLY ONE TREATMENT! I'll prove the second treatment—ONE IN FIFTY needs the third—think of that!

What Eczema is
Eczema is a disease of the blood and affects all parts of the body—the face, lips, ears, hands, feet, genital organs, etc. Symptoms—Yellowish red eruptions; the pimples or patches are small and the itching is so great the person will scratch all day, then they bleed and oozing scales form; there is an oozing of serum. In some the skin cracks and bleeds. In some a person suffering will scratch till they bleed. Scabies runs on parts of the body, where the itching comes in contact.

Ten Years Guarantee
I guarantee that every case cured by me will stay cured 10 years! It must be good or it could not be sold this way.

Strong as Rock of Gibraltar

I am a graduate from two leading medical schools. I am the holder of a GOLD MEDAL taken in Competitive Examination. Does this not show that I am fully qualified? I will send you my book, showing evidence of my skill and the names of the doctors who have cured thousands of cases from every part of the world. Some of them may be your neighbors.

MY BOOK
Is the most complete book ever sent out. I explain every form of the disease plainly and fully. I show pictures of many severe cases, which are successfully treated. It is read by the names of the doctors who have been cured and are grateful.
